CHICAGO, June 10 .- The progressive national convention assembled at 10:30 o'clock, with the prospect that Col. Roosevelt vould be nominated almost immediately. After meeting with the republican peace managers the progressive leaders expressed the opinion that Col. Roosevelt would be the nominee.

to a meeting of the republican and progressive conferees. All the state chairmen remained in the conference. It was said no word had yet come from Col. Roosevelt as to whether he would accept a progressive nomination if the republican convention nominated Justice Hughes.

After the conferees had been in session about half an hour George W. Perkins and Charles J. Bonaparte left the club in a taxicab for an unannounced destination.

"We still are in negotiation."

"We still are in negotiation." Mr. Perkins said. "I can't say more now." After a brief conference Mr. Perkins returned to the waiting state chairmen and made a report which was not disclosed. He indicated that he might have another conference with the republican conferees.

Meeting Somewhat Stormy.

The meeting of the state chairmen The meeting of the state chairmen was somewhat stormy. Several of the chairmen implied that Chairman Perkins was not for Roosevelt to the last trench. Miller of Florida and Parker trench. Miller of Florida and Parker Tenness of Louisiana resented the criticism. Miller left the room, but was persuaded to return. Parker declined to address the meeting.

Mr. Perkins told them that even if Illinois went to Hughes at the republican convention it would be insufficient to nominate, and that he looked for a recession in the Hughes strength on succeeding ballots.

"The tide will turn to Roosevelt, I Phillingings. 2.

Predicts Early Nomination.

William Allen White of Emporia, Kan., predicted that before the prominutes Col. Roosevelt would be nominated. The southern delegates in the conference put up a strong fight against a merger with the republicans and contended for preserving the progressive party as a political entity. It was understood that Senator Smooth had submitted a proposal to the progressives which was placed in writing. While it was felt in some quarters that the progressive convention might nominate Col. Roosevelt today, it was also believed that the nomination of Hughes would not prove wholly objectionable to the progressive leaders, and that they might indorse him, Col. Roosevelt withdrawing if he were named.

"We want this convention to name Roosevelt before the republicans get a chance," said Col. R. A.
